Mr. Westerfield testified that Ekman had allowed his cattle to stay on a small flat near his house, from which the water drained into the creek and thus brought refuse into the stream. Ekman testified that he had irrigated the flat in question and that the water would not run into the creek. The attorney for the defense made a short argument of the case, in which he set forth that the law did not mean that the water should not be befouled at all, because that is impossible, but that it means that it should not be befouled unnecessarily. He argued that the defendants had not befouled the waters unnecessarily and had a wight to water their cattle at the stream even if they did pollute the waters a little.

After his argument the court said that he would find the defendants not guilty, and discharged them.

Helen Bloomquist is the young girl who some time ago was arrested for stealing some jewelry from a family for whom she was morking. The girl has a father in the east but has no relatives in this city.

Idaho Citizens Would Preserve Feature of Fair.

(Special Correspondence.) Boise, Ida., Oct. 10.-The mineral ex hibit at the Intermountain fair may be preserved intact for some time. Several influential men are urging that it be kept until the meeting of the national mining congress in Boise next January. The mineral exhibit this year is one of the best ever seen at an Idaho fair. It was arranged under the direction of W. H. Savidge and M. B. McGlenn and represents the vast mineral resources of Idaho. One of the principal features of the department is the exhibit of the Idaho Mining Journal. This is composed principally of specimens from mines in Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Alaska, all personally collected by the editor, Charles A. Dinsmore. The exhibit is considered one of the best exponents possible of the state's mineral resources and will be kept for the June convention if nothing else is. preserved intact for some time. Sever

CAPT. HUNT AT BLACFOOT. He and Judge Flenner Speak at Dubois' Home. (Special to The Herald.)

Blackfoot, Ida., Oct. 11.—Capiain Frank W. Hunt, Democratic candidate for gov-ernor and J. D. Flenner of Boise, addressed a magnificent audience here tonight. The meeting was in the co and was presided over by S. J. Rich Democratic candidate for elector. The closest attention was paid the speakers. closest attention was paid the speakers.

The address of Captain Hunt was a purely business-like statement of conditions existing in the state as a result of four years of Democratic administration and what the people could expect if the party was returned to power.

Mr. Plenner spoke upon national and state topics. His speech was pronounced the best heard in Blackfoot during the campaign and was strongly in contrast with that of Mr. Heyburn and James M. Shoup, delivered here last night. There is no doubt but that Mr. Flenner left a very decided impression upon his hearers.

The outhook is favorable throughout the state. The campaign at Idaho Falls last night being but a repetition of the enthusiastic outpourings they have met with in their campaign all over southeastern Idaho.
